Surrounded by water and meadows: a care facility in the heart of Hamburg

- PORR Germany. Green and Lean' on the new residential and care home Wilhelmsburg, Hamburg

This is possible thanks to PORR's comprehensive range of construction services from a single source – from general planning to execution planning and from excavation to shell construction. The WILHELMSBURG project involves a number of different construction projects that are interlinked, and the residents' relocations had to be planned well in advance. This made it essential to coordinate the individual trades in a sophisticated way.

New, modernised care facilities in the Hanseatic city

The care facilities in Hamburg-Wilhelmsburg offer inpatient, short-term and dementia care and are among the few facilities in Hamburg that care for people in a persistent vegetative state and people with dementia or Korsakow syndrome who are subject to a court-ordered placement. Four care buildings, a boiler house and a former sheltered housing block were scattered around the site at the beginning of the 1960s, resulting in long distances, wasted time and inefficiency in care. Furthermore, they in no way meet today's energy requirements. The new buildings on Hermann-Westphal-Straße combine all wards and functional areas.
