The former Lilien Carré has been given a new face and a new lease of life

The consortium's joint construction site team surmounted this huge challenge with their customary professionalism. Dust protection walls were erected to seal off the construction areas from ongoing business operations, for example, and the team were even able to minimise the vibrations caused by their work to meet the requirements of a nearby dental practice.

More light, more visibility, more open spaces

The facade at the main entrance has been fitted with inviting glass panels spanning two levels, and the areaways have been enlarged to give the mall a bright and friendly appearance. The massive central indoor rotunda was opened up to create new lines of sight. The conversion work included the removal of ceilings and walls as well as demolition work in the centre, expanding the rental spaces, dismantling the lift, and building a new lift core. Additional bored pile foundations were installed in the underground car park in order to realise the open design concept with four new escalators and six new moving walkways. The contract also comprised a comprehensive fire safety system as well as a complete redesign of the media lines – 13,000 running metres of electrical cables were laid.

Image notes

1

Shopping Center Lili, Wiesbaden

The former Lilien-Carré became the Lili, named after the lily in Wiesbaden's coat of arms.

2

As the conversion work was carried out on three upper floors and two basement floors during ongoing operations, the impact on tenants, customers and neighbours had to be kept to a minimum.

In order to create visual connections, the mighty central rotunda in the interior was opened upwards.
