Conversion into modern, barrier-free office buildings.

BBGS is also installing entirely new building technology, including an access control system, intruder alarm systems and video surveillance, as well as fire alarm, mass notification and sprinkler systems.

The third renovation project also involves an existing administrative building, with approximately 2,050m² gross floor area, that must be adapted to the special unit's high security requirements. We are installing AT/FP-compliant windows and external doors and other components for this project.

Absolute reliability is an essential part of collaboration

As a fundamental rule, the plans had to adhere to the most stringent requirements of applicable German and American laws and regulations. Project managers therefore not only had to deal with the existing buildings' load-bearing structures and challenges, they also needed to ensure that regulations were properly implemented. The fact that the plans were produced in compliance with the contract and on schedule before construction began can be attributed to the many years of experience BBGS has working on US Government projects.
