Extensive design & build project in Zutendaal, Belgium

As the existing roofs and walls did not meet current standards, some of them had to be demolished and replaced with elements that could resist the structural load.

These included the installation of additional steel roof purlins in eight warehouses. As the structural requirements differed from material to material, a high degree of craftsmanship was required in addition to planning quality. Following the recommendations of the BBGS planning department, automated and space-saving sectional doors were installed. New skylights provide daylight in the buildings and create a bright and modern atmosphere. Sensor-controlled exhaust and ventilation systems as well as a new lightning protection system satisfy the client's high safety requirements.

The BBGS Benelux team managed all tasks professionally and in close cooperation with the customer. As a result, the project was successfully completed six months earlier than planned.
